

Dr Miftahul Islam Barbaruah

Dr. Barbaruah is a veterinarian development worker with twenty-two years of experience and expertise in development planning, project management, advocacy, capacity building, and animal disease risk management. His research and development activities related to veterinary service and livestock sector development acknowledge transdisciplinarity as an approach and aim to integrate veterinary science with social science for sustainable development. As a PVS-VPP expert, he regularly contributes to the World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE) and FAO of the UN. He is currently leading the team at Vet Helpline India Pvt Ltd – a development consulting company.